SCHOLARLY CONTRIBUTIONS & CREATIVE PRODUCTIONS

Books

Hughes , R., Barnett, D., Christian, C., & Wallace, R. (2010). Privileged thinking in today's schools - Implications for social justice. Lanham, Maryland: Rowman and Littlefield.
The authors reflect on their years of practice as principals and superintendents and with brutal honesty share clear evidence of inadvertent social injustice that likely negatively impacted student equity, fairness and achievement. The hope of the authors is that their successors in the art and science of school administration will be better informed and equipped to ensure social justice in today and tomorrow's schools.

Creative Productions

Hughes , R. (2009). Educators across America: Stop what you are doing and teach Slum Dog."

This is an article I submitted to the Kentucky School Board Association after viewing the movie, "Slum Dog Millionaire."

Hughes , R. (2003). The educational good news for Hardin County schools according to the state legislature, KERA, conventional wisdom, and some fairly good research. Hardin County Public Schools, Morehead State University.

Submitted

Hughes , R. (2007). The emperor is not fully clothed. This is a two-hour presentation I prepared for the State Board of Education when I was interviewed in November 2007 as a top-four candidate for the position of Chief State School Officer (Commissioner of Education).
